This is an extract from a short DVD created by the AYOMI organisation, the peer educators of Aceh. It shows the youth friendly health service through the eyes of young people. Implementing health services for young people in Aceh is challenging because of the history of conflict and tsunami.....but it is possible.

This is the official website of the Ministry of Health of the Indonesian Republic. It has got two sections, one in Indonesian and one in English. Reflect on how many websites (also of official government bodies) are already available in Indonesia, and how this is similar to your country. Peruse the website to see how user-friendly it is, how informative and how accessible. Check both language sections, and work on the language too.
